

Cold Days, long nights No Capo Am
©Martin Browne 12/05/2002

Am D G D/F# Em
Today the sun rose, much like it did before
Am D G
A normal start to any day
Am D G G/F# Em
But I still wait to hear you key turn in the door
Am D Em
It's been like this since you went away

I wrote a letter but it's still there in the hall
Couldn't really find the words to say
A half-read book lies open on your armchair
It's been like this since you went away

G D C G
Cold days, long and lonely nights
Em Am D
The clock stands still upon the wall
G D C G
Time heals, or so the wise men say
Em C D
But that minute hand just hasn't moved at all

Got to get out from this house got to find myself some air
Feels just like the walls are closing in
But then I find I'm on the path we used to walk together
I hear your laughter haunting me again

The wind is chilly as it blows along the shoreline
The same old waves go crashing on the sand
But there's a hole beside me that nothing seems to fill
God knows this ache is more than I can stand

Cold days, long and lonely nights
The clock stands still upon the wall
Time heals, or so the wise men say
But that minute hand just hasn't moved at all
But that minute hand just hasn't moved at all
