D G D
Did you ever see a flower turn its head towards the sun?
G D
Have you ever seen a baby close its eyes when day is done?
G D
Have you ever stopped to question why the summer nights are long?
G D
And why does the smallest bird seem to sing the sweetest song?

[Chorus]
A G A G A G D
When the wind is howling, when the storm is raging, I will keep you safe from harm
A G A G A G D
When the night is longest, when your pain is strongest, I will fold you in my arms.

Why does youth know all the answers, before it's had the time to learn?
And does all love have a future beyond the days when passions burn?
If we never asked a question would we know the reasons why?
Will we ever know the future, are the old afraid to die?

Growing up was never easy, growing older has its pain
But we all need the strength of someone, as the desert cries for rain
We will face the world together, take the knocks along the way
If the darkness asks the questions, we'll find the answers in the day.
