A New Day ©Martin Browne D No Capo 16/08/2013

Another dawn outside my curtains, I feel the sun come streaming through

What lies ahead I'm not too certain, But I'm glad to share this day with you

You never know what's round the corner, Uncertainty nags just like a pain

But with each new day my heart feels warmer, For always sunshine follows rain

We learn hard lessons as the years fly, The distance travelled takes its toll
Although with every mile that goes by, It's getting easier growing old

It seems sometimes it's all a struggle, One step forwards two steps back
But if we can rise above our troubles, There's another turning down the track

Should we believe in second chances? If so I guess I'm taking mine
And every gift that life enhances, We'll share the feast we'll drink the wine.
